PILLOW TALK! AND I'M BACK!

Tue, 03/29/2011 - 10:49pm

Body Beautiful Face

Meg here! Maybe you've noticed I've been really quiet on here. Don't be mad. I was filming the most amazing TV show that you guys are going to love! Great story, the best beauty A-List experts in the industry and who did I film with? None other than Russel Brand! I swear you lovelies are going to flip! Jeanasina has picked up the slack and written an amazing article on something we all have and need...Our pillow!

Hey everybody! Jeanasina is in the house and I want to talk to you today about my pillow! How many of you have a favorite pillow that you sleep on? Go ahead, go grab your pillow and get comfy and let's talk about our pillows!

You all remember the story of Little Red Riding Hood? Remember how she went to the bear's house and tried all the chairs and beds until she found the one that was just right? It has taken me YEARS to find the pillow that was 'just right' for me!

I remember when I was young, going to sleepovers... I ALWAYS brought my own favorite pillow to the party! You did that too right? Still do it?

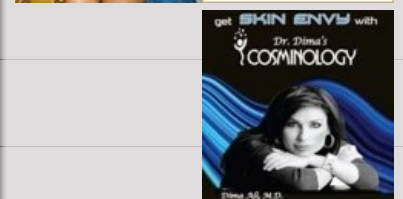

I started out in my youth with a feather pillow but it turned out that I had allergies, so that was a BAD idea from the get-go. Then, I had a really FAT foam pillow! I piled TWO of these fatties on top of each other! I slept that way for years! Foam was definitely the way to go for a long time! I was a stomach sleeper, when I went to sleep, I'd be on my stomach and my face would be up in the TWO pillows so that my NECK was jacked way back! Are you picturing this? Neck Violation of the Highest Order!

In the past 7 or so years, I have gone through MANY different pillows still trying to find the ONE that will help me to sleep all night without tossing and turning! Even more of a goal was to find one that allowed me to wake up without NECK PAIN! 😊

When I met my husband, he was all about getting a memory foam bed, so we of course had to have memory foam pillows! I liked them for awhile but they are HARD! My head barely sunk down each night and when I woke up I was never a happy camper. Then I purchased a memory foam pillow contour pillow where one part is rather flat and then there is this ridge where you lay your head. Nope! Not even remotely interested in that thing!

My husband's brother said "YOU GOTTA TRY THE TONY LITTLE PILLOWS THEY SELL ON HSN!" He swore they were the best thing that ever happened to his neck and sleep patterns. I shelled out about $80.00 to HSN (you had to purchase two) they were delivered to my doorstep. They are filled with "millions of micropedic beads". They have 'chambers' which cradle your head and are supposed to 'virtually eliminate the need for constant fluffing!" I used them for months and I did like them better than any other pillow I had tried. I still woke up with neck pain. I wouldn't stay at anybody's house without bringing these two pillows with me. They were the best so far!

I left my Tony Little pillows at my daughter's house one day. I went to Walgreens and purchased the 'Sobakawa Cloud Pillow' as seen on TV! It was $19.95 and it was like my Tony Little pillows... "it's made up of 10 million air beads!" It's about 1/3rd the size of my Tony Little pillow (think pillow for a little kid with a little head). I think this was the travel size. I used it anyway because I was desperate! These pillows claim to stay cool so you don't wake up with 'HOT HEAD' and have to turn your pillow over constantly. I didn't find that to ring true with either pillow but I do think both these brands are GREAT for cuddling or putting between your legs for comfort or so you don't roll over onto your face. My head must be like an inferno because my pillows are always ready to fry an egg on after I sleep on them!

Bringing me to the present. I have been going to a chiropractor (a REALLY GREAT ONE) I saw on display there, a pillow that is filled with WATER! They highly recommended this for my neck. So I researched the Chiroflow and the Mediflow Water Based Cervical Neck Support Pillows and found out that a LOT of people LOVE them! So...I found the best price I could and also purchased a quilted cover for the pillow and I ordered one! These two brands are almost identical but I went with the Mediflow!

I watched instructions on the internet on how to fill it up and man, I gotta tell you, I was SKEPTICAL! The first night I slept on it after having my husband fill it with water, was the FIRST time EVER in years that I DIDN'T turn over every 2 hours and move my pillow! I think I only turned over twice that night!

I'm a fan! I was worried it would be like a water bed and that I'd hear sloshing sounds all night long, but I don't! The thing weighs about 8 lbs filled up so I really can't have a pillow fight easily with this pillow!

The reason I'm bringing up pillows to begin with is...we ALL need our BEAUTY sleep and sleep is one of the number one important things that keeps us healthy in SO many ways! When you feel rested your face looks GOOD! You know how sexy a woman looks in the morning after she's had a good night's sleep (or sex)! Well...having a good pillow is like having a contented sleepover with your best friend every night!

My head is worth a billion zillion dollars to me, so whatever the cost of a pillow that makes my head happy IS...THAT is what I'm willing to pay! The Mediflow Waterbase Pillow company says that it is 'clinically shown to improve quality of sleep and reduce neck pain' - I think they are on to something!

What's your pillow of choice? Sweet dreams until I talk to you all again!

I love Russell Brand - I can't wait to see this. I don't really know what type of pillow I have; they definitely aren't feather pillows. I think they're a memory foam of some sort, but they aren't the hard memory foam and they don't get hot. The answer doesn't keep me up at night. (har de har har) I think I would adore a water pillow. It sounds so comfy. I loved the water bed that used to be at our beach house, but I'd be a little afraid of it popping or springing a leak like the bed did. Was there meant to be a tie in with comfy pillows -> sweet dreams -> Russell Brand or was that a complete accident? ;)

For me, there's nothing that beats a really good, plump feather pillow. My fiancé constantly laughs at me, because I ALWAYS bring my own pillow. Even when he has plenty. But I know my own pillow, and that it gives me the support I want (and most importantly is shapeable, foldable and bunchable to my hearts content). I would not like a pillow that I cannot drape comfortably over my arm, since I sleep on my side, arm under pillow, head on top. Where would my arm go with a water pillow?

I have neck and back problems, plus I suffer from chronic insomnia. I really like my pillow, it's memory foam surrounded by the usual synthetic fluff. It's soft, but really supportive regardless of how I want to sleep.

Were you watching me toss and turn and beat on my pillows last night. I go through pillows like some people go through Altoids. I loved my body pillow for the longest time, but I am not getting enough enck support from my other pillows no matter how I arrange (and rearrange) them. I am just not sure I want to shell out $80 for pillows. AND YOU DON'T HAVE TO: Target, BBB and amazon.com among others sell them and you don't have to buy two. Just bought at amazon.com on sale and I am a PRIME member so no shipping.

I have been using the Mediflow pillow now for 2 years and absolutely love it!! For the same reasons Jeannasina went in search of a new pillow I did too. I was waking up with really bad neck aches that would go down my shoulders. I always thought sleeping with a down pillow was the way to go, wrong. I then tried all the same pillows as Jeannasina (I think she might be my soul pillow sister) and none stopped the neck pain. For me sleeping on the Sobakawa pillow was like sleeping on a bag full of corn flakes crunch, crunch, crunch. I can't remember how I heard about the Mediflow pillow but I can honestly say this has saved my neck and shoulders from a lot of pain. Just a couple of weeks ago I thought, hey why not use that down pillow you still have and see how it goes..... not a good idea, I ended up at the Acupuncturist with the worst stiff neck. Thanks for the review Jeannasina!!

I'm excited to see that some of you have this pillow too! I also wanted to mention for anyone that goes to the website to check it out; if you purchase one of these Mediflow pillow's at any of the stores shown, you can get a $7.00 rebate if you purchase one before 5/15/2011. I purchased mine on Amazon.com for $35.99 and it was eligible for free shipping!! I'm not really worried about it leaking and the protective padded cover I got for it really makes it even nicer to sleep on! My chiropractor said she has had hers for close to 4 years now and it has never leaked!

great profile pic jeanasina! i'm in the process of trying to teach myself to sleep on my back (so i can nix these chest creases from side sleeping)... once i've mastered it... we'll see about new pillows... altho usually i'll pick up a few new pillows at a time at homegoods... we have a ridiculous amount of pillows (we have a ridiculous sized bed as well)... because i dont like big king sized pillows (even tho we have a kind bed) so we have 6 standard pillows... and 2 of those foam shaped suckers (which i found great for side sleeping until i realized i was ruining my chest).

I have one flat pillow and another one that is puffier that combine to make the right height for me. I thankfully don't have issues with neck pain, so I don't have to be too particular. Funny pillow story: my fiance went to be before I did the other night, and he had stolen BOTH of my pillow and was completely wrapped up in the blankets by the time I got to bed. There was no subtle way to get into bed, so I tugged on the blankets until he woke up and gave me my pillows back. LOL

Funny you brought this up! I just bought a memory foam pillow today. My favorite pillows ever were made of foam with holes in it, so they squished real nice when I slept, and I had to throw them out after a really nasty bacterial infection. Every pillow I've bought since has been a major disappointment. Being able to squish my pillow is the most important thing.

Welcome back Meg, the show sounds exciting! Can't wait to hear more about it! I have the same problem with pillows and I feel like I've been searching my whole life for the 'right one'. I used to use feather pillows a lot but I recently switched to some Calvin Klein ones that I got a great deal on. They are not bad but a little hard and they seem to get flat easily. I also toss and turn at night, maybe I just need to find the right pillow like you.... the Amazon reviews of this are very good too!

I'm weird - prefer a hard, flat pillow to a mushy, fluffy one, but most people must like the mushy ones because that's what all the hotels seem to have. I feel like they are sucking in my face. I would rather sleep on the bed with no pillow.

I bought this for the boyfriend, and he used it for the first time last night. He always tosses and turns at night, so I thought this would be a good investment. We got it through Amazon for $35. I am going to try it myself tonight, to see if I will buy a second one. As for last night, he said he liked the pillow very much, but he wants to deflate it a little bit because it is a little too firm for his liking. Will report back if I fall in love with this product.
